JIMMY HYDE ON WITNESS STAND

Former Vice-President of Equitable Before the Armstrong Committee. GREAT SENSATION Caused by Testimony Involving Gov. Odell and Mr. Harriman.

ENTIRE TESTIMONY WAS OF GREAT INTEREST AND CLEAR-ED UP MANY POINTS THAT HERETOFORE REMAINED IN THE DARK--EXPLAINS MERCANTILE TRUST LOAN.

By Associated Press. New York, Nov. 14.—James Hazen Hyde, former vice president of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, whose resignation followed sensational disclosures in that company last spring, which led to the investigation of insurance company methods by the Armstrong committee, a man whose presence as a witness before the committee has been looked forward to in the expectation that it would produce the greatest sensation of the investigation, appeared before the committee to-day.

Hyde's manner on the stand was one of composure and deliberation and his replies to questions of counsel were calm and deliberate and oftentimes studied. He was fortified with data and was very frank in his explanations but frequently he would become bitter in reference to some associates. His entire testimony was of deep interest and cleared up many points that have heretofore remained in the dark. In anticipation of his presence as a witness there was a greater crowd than has attended the sessions of the committee.

Mr. Hyde cleared up the matter of the six hundred and eighty-five thousand dollar loan of the Merchants Trust Company, which appeared on the books of the Equitable Life under the caption "J. W. Alexander number three accounts." Mr. Hyde first heard of this account in the fall of 1902, when it was called to his attention by President Alexander, who said that he and Mr. Jordan had incurred a loan to take up stock that was being bid up to fictitious values to the detriment of the company to settle suits that were hampering the business of the society and for campaign contributions. This contribution was for the last campaign and was asked for by Mr. Frick, who suggested it was for the benefit of the society.

Mr. Hyde stated that he had to pay two hundred and twelve thousand dollars of the loan personally on account of a letter that Mr. Alexander extracted from him.

Eclipsing all sensational testimony however, were the statements of Mr. Hyde concerning former governor Odell and Mr. Harriman relative to the ship building company suit by the Merchants Trust Company. Mr. Hyde said Mr. Harriman came to him and advised a settlement of Odell's suit as he feared powerful influence at Albany would be invoked in retaliatory measures. Mr. Harriman suggested one of these measures was the revocation of the charter of the Merchants Trust Company. Mr. Hyde was under the impression that the Merchants Trust in settlement retained the bonds and paid Mr. Odell about $75,000. The claim of Odell was about $180,000. The bonds subsequently netted fifty cents on the dollar. Mr. Hyde said Mr. Harriman suggested settlement of the suit and counsel and a member of the executive committee of the Merchants Trust Company, advised and recommended it.
